FALL | 2020 | QUARTERLY NEWSLETTER

TOP TIPS & TAKEAWAYS DURING COVID-19

Multiple virtual interaction points with new cohorts, so they got to know each other, faculty and staff before the school year started. This meant early mornings and late evenings to support international students over the world, but hopefully will pay off in terms of student success

- Lessley McKay

SFU Beedie School of Business

We usually provide dinner for our Evening MBA students, since we weren't able to meet in person, we hosted a virtual iron chef. We worked with local restaurants to create meal kits (similar to HelloFresh). Students were able to pick up their kit, join us on zoom, and cook from home for a friendly competition!

- Cori Rodriguez

U of A, Eller College of Management

We gave all students the option to attend classes in person or remotely this fall, they are able to transition between delivery methods based on what works for them. We also incorporated networking happy hours twice a week over zoom for incoming students, (lunch hours and end of day).
